Revisionist History

FORASMUCH as many have taken in hand to set forth in order a declaration of those things which are most surely believed among us-Luke 1:1.

IN the beginning God created the heaven and the earth (Simple enough)...And the Lord God formed man of the dust of the ground (Yech!)...[And] she shall be called Woman, because she was taken out of Man (What?! That sounds backwards)...And they were both naked (That's cool)...Satan, Cain and Abel, death and destruction, Noah, Jesus, Nazis, late night talk show

Assuming God to be white and assuming Adam and Eve to be white and reading in the Book of Genesis about the land of Ethiopia, it seems strange that white people are not indigenous to that region—the Biblical region. Assuming, of course, that white, European society and its American offsprings' perception of God to be true, which, apparently, it is

And assuming God is not white and that He created His son Jesus Christ, in His own image and knowing that Jesus dwelt somewhere in what is now the Middle East and was therefore not white and certainly not pasty, pale white with sandyblond hair as we picture Him. In short, He did not look like Willem Dafoe.

And assuming that Jesus was not white, though at this point I might venture to be in the know where this is concerned and knowing Jesus preached good things and reading that Jesus consorted with anyone and sensing that in today's society such fraternization is bad and feeling that Jesus has been and is grossly and often misrepresented and worse, exploited for the purpose of legitimizing conquest, destruction, warfare, death, famine and censorship.

And assuming that Jesus was not a Capitalist: I hereby reference the parable of the bread, the fish and the multitudes of hungry people (Matthew 14:15-21 for those of you worshipping at home) whereby Jesus gave a horde of hungry people free food that he miraculously multiplied. Any decent, God-loving Capitalist would have owned the combined wealth of the "five thousand men, beside women and children." In fact, any good Capitalist would probably have owned the women and children.

So assuming that God is not white and Jesus Christ was not white and Christ was not a Capitalist and Christ followed God, then God is not a Capitalist. For if He were, He most certainly would not delay any further in sending His Son, Jesus Christ, back onto this earth to demand royalties for all Bible sales, promotion percentages for all travelling worship-fests and portions of gate receipts for all Godly amusement parks, concerts and revivals.

And, assuming all previous assumptions to be true, it comes as no surprise or no less offensive that God and Capitalism have been used to wreak havoc, death, upheaval; to influence popular opinion, sexual habits and acceptances and ideas upon unsuspecting peoples; to mandate political, sociological and historical occurrences, norms and ideals and to establish the price of mustard on a monthly basis.

Basically, this column is whacked beyond all repair; but, I offer no excuses, no apologies. I'm sorry, it's religion and Capitalism's fault. But really, the title of this column was to reflect an ambitious attempt on my behalf to clarify the events surrounding Central American foreign policy as implemented by the Presidential Administration of Ronald Wilson Reagan, the CIA, Capitalism, Country and God, necessarily in that order.

At the point which is this, it has become painfully necessary for me to "wing it." As point of reference, I usually "wing it," but in this case I am more towards "slinging it" than "winging it."

Suffice it to say that Reagan and his foreign policy and intelligence team, through lies, guile, manipulation and skill, waged anti-Communist (ideological and economic) warfare in Central America of the very kind that as recent as five years prior, large proportions of Americans protested voraciously against (Vietnam). Same thing. Same board game mentality with American tax dollars for passing go and Nicarguan and Salvadoran boys for pawns on a riduculous and scandalously funded battlefield.

The CIA waged war in Vietnam in 1954, in Nicaragua in 1984. With Communism falling around the world, where will they be in 1994? God-willing, they'll find something to do.

Nazzaro's column appears weekly in the Connector. His views do not necessarily reflect those of The Connector.

Antioch University Yellow Springs, Ohio has been trying to reduce sexual offenses on campus through a student policy that requires students to give and receive verbal consent for every act of affection.

The policy, in effect for three years now, also threatens suspension of three months or more if any Antioch student-male or female- fails to inform their partners that they have a sexually transmitted disease. There is also a section defining rape, sexual assault and harassment, and "sexual imposition" described as nonconsensual sexual contact.

Turkey Bologna and Safe Sex: An Interview with Suzi Landolphi

by Edmund Tsai Connector Contributor

You may be wondering what turkey bologna has to do with safe sex; well, nothing really, except for the fact that Suzi Landolphi, an outspoken advocate for safe sex, only buys foods which are healthy—turkey bologna being one of them. I was lucky enough to catch her at home in Gloucester the other day for an interview. We talked over a lunch on a very sunny Saturday afternoon. Suzi was in very casual dress—sweat shirt and an MTV hat, and was streaked with white paint because she had been painting her porch before my arrival. I was greeted at her purple front door first by her husband and then by her very spirited dog, or should I say, DOGS. We walked to the kitchen, which looked like it came right out of "Better Homes and Gardens," where Suzi was preparing lunch, and offered me a, you guessed it, bologna sandwich. Throughout the entire interview her dogs kept interrupting for a bit of attention and I couldn't help but to give a little scratch behind the ear in return for a little nose rub on

You might know Suzi from her show "Rap Around", which is on Saturday mornings at 11 A.M. on WBZ-TV. You probably know her better from her very funny and informative lectures on safe sex, which she does on occasion for benefits, educational institutions, and even prisons. Actually, she does her show "Hot, Sexy, and Safer" more than just occasionally; in fact, she is already came to the Radison Inn at Chelmsford, where she did her show as a benefit for Big Brothers and Big Sisters of Lowell.

Her career as an AIDS educator all started in 1983 when she volunteered for an AIDS organization by taking care of patients and being a fund-raiser, and in 1986 she was asked to be an AIDS educator. In addition to her TV show and lectures, which are more like stand-up comedy, Suzi currently has two film projects which are almost in development. She has also been asked to do a national show. She is going to be appearing on an MTV special in October, and an HBO special in February. Also in her past, she opened the first condom store in America, which is now managed by her 20-year-old daughter and has grown to a chain of eight

Beverly, Born in Massachusetts, Suzi grew up there and attended Beverly High School. She graduated and went on to Middlebury College in Vermont, where she graduated in 1976 with a BA in theater and a minor in dance. During our interview, she told me a bit about her family life:

"I was born 20 miles south of here (Gloucester) in a hospital in Beverly, Massachusetts. Son...er, daughter of...sometimes I feel like a son...daughter of Italian immigrant father, and White Anglo-Saxon Protestant mother. So, very bizarre background, made me very schizophrenic, and which basically meant that I had oatmeal and booked until the year 1995! Just brown sugar in the morning, and father disowned me every other recently, on September 14th, she then I would go to my other week. I didn't do what he wanted grandparents and sit on plastic furniture and eat spaghetti. One side of my family would talk very refined and of course the next would be yelling and screaming and going nuts. So that's a lot of what I am. I joke and I say I am half Italian, and the bottom half is English. I never got along well me to do because he disowned me, and then the next week he would pick me up and I wouldn't come down stairs, and he would say to my brothers and sisters 'Where's Suzi?' and they would say, 'Well you disowned her last week, remember?' and he would say, 'Grr, well tell her to come down with my Italian side, or my Italian part of me, or my Italian side of the family. They were much to harsh and too angry, very cruel, I felt. They could be very loving but all I saw as a kid was a lot of the yelling, screaming and anger. But I noticed that at least they were honest. The English side of the family never raised their voice above a whisper, but they weren't honest. I am very much influenced by my mother who was the English side of me, and grew up with her more than my dad. My here.' Then he was mad at me for not coming downstairs, so I was damned if I didn't and damned if I did. So that would be that kind of household...it was very abusive,

How do you think your parents would have felt?

"My biological father would be horrified. He would not be happy. Because he was the type of person that was racist, homophobic, and chauvinistic. Although you know what's funny, I think in retrospect that, he might be very proud in what I do. He knew I was a bit out there, but I was certainly a source of strangeness to him. My mother, bless her soul, she has since passed on too, my mother would be so proud of me that she would not be able to contain herself. She would feel like Bill Clinton's mother at this moment. If I did nothing else with my life, she would feel like I was the best person in the whole world. So much of what I do is based on her courage and her strength and her value system and how she brought me up. I have an 85 year old stepfather who thinks I am just a scream. He loves me, he thinks I am great, and he watches me on television and he just thinks it's super. The real question is what does my daughter think's about it. Think about if you had me as a mother right now. My daughter does a very funny comedy routine that we just thought up. I am doing this big benefit at the Improv in LA, it's my second year doing it, and she [daughter] is going to do a whole piece about Well all you people must thing she is cool, but you're not her daughter!' So let me tell you the downside about having a mother like this. It's embarrassing when your mother is the person going out there and talking about clitoris, penis and vagina. It's embarrassing getting ready for a date you come out and find your mother sitting around a how-to sex book with your boyfriend...You know what I mean, this puts a lot of pressure on her!"

Office of Community Service awards Service Fellowship

The Community Service Fellowship, which began in 1991, awards $500.00 to those seniors who have demonstrated exemplary service in the community. The money for these awards is graciously donated by Greater Lowell banks and the Alumni Association. Proceeds from the Spring 1993 Service Recognition Awards brunch also go toward these awards. The following are a list of the Fellows and a few of their accomplishments:

Jennifer Miller, from Gloucester, MA, is studying Health Education. A member of the Community Outreach Club, Jennifer lives at the Catholic Center during the school year and participates in the community service efforts put out by the Center. In the past she has worked on the outreach trip which takes a number of UMASS Lowell students to rural Alabama to help the poor by repairing and painting homes. She coordinates a bi-weekly spaghetti dinner at the Catholic Center and currently is working with the Office of Community Service on planning the events for Hunger and Homeless week which take place November 7-14. Anyone interested in the projects Jenn has been involved in can contact her at 441-0958 or X3193.

Kevin Drouin, a Political Science major and History minor, has worked in the Office of Community Service for 3 years. From Lawrence now living in Lowell, Kevin ran a Big Brother/Big Sister campaign last spring to recruit volunteers. He is of the Community Outreach Club, the associate commissioner for the volunteered through the School

Racism workshop offers insights, solutions

by Joseph Eubanks Connector Staff

On Wednesday morning, September 29, 1993, conference attendees listened to the new chancellor of the Amherst campus of UMass, Dr. David K. Scot tell faculty and staff they must network amongst themselves.

One of the key workshops was titled "Attracting and Keeping Students of Color: What works? This workshop was presented by four speakers: Dr. Robert Fortes, of UMass Dartmouth, Jean Moss of Amherst College, M. Ricardo Townes of UMass Amherst and Gladys Rodriquez-Parker of UMass Worcester.

All four speakers stressed that "faculty is the key." Every presenter made it clear that all the faculty members, such as the Dean of Students, Dean of Academic Affairs as well as the directors of such offices like Residence Life and Financial Aid should be introduced to students of color early in their collegiate career.

All of the presenters stressed to adminstrators that while recruiters should seek students of color with promise, not just accomplishments.

One book that the presenters recommended for all people to read is Derrick Bell's Faces at the Bottom of the Well. The most eye-opening topic mentioned is that it is cheaper to enroll a student four years in the UMass school system than it is to maintain them for a year at the correctional facility at Cedar Junction (Walpole) State Prison. The presenters came to the consensus that students of color have to be retained by any and all means possible. Also dialogue between faculty, staff and students is necessary.

Finally, at the conclusion of the workshop, the presenters made it quite clear that students are "consumers," not goods or products. Since most of the students attending the UMass school system are Massachusetts residents, it is the goal of the state school system to make productive students who will eventually support the economy in the state by spending their money as well as paying taxes on the state and fed-

"Getting It Right: Success Stories," speaker, Dr. Deborah Harmon Hines acquainted the attendees with the programs of the UMass Worcester campus.

The Worcester campus presently offers three Graduate schools: Biomedical Sciences, Nursing, and Medical School.

Dr. Hines' position with the school is to recruit and retain underepresented groups of people such as African-Americans, Native-Americans, Mexican-Americans, and Puerto-Ricans.

One startling statistic given during Harmon Hines' presentation is that no more than fifty underepresented people take the Medical School Admitance Test (MCAT).

The Minority Affairs program at Worcester has made it imperative that there should be an attempt to make the students' enviroment as positive as possible so they may have high expectations of themselves.

Dr. Hines also brought up the point that there is a difference between high achievers and highly motivated students. Thegoal of

In the final workshop, recruiters should be to search for students that are highly motivated. Her justification is that students that are highly motivated are less likely to be accepted into mainstream programs and therefore are given less of an opportunity than high achievers.

UMass Worcester is unique in that it has a highly developed summer program in which average but solid high school students have the chance to experience a university setting. In this program, students attend classes taught on the UMass Worcester campus and stay in dormitories rented from other schools. Commuting back and forth and earning money during the summer generally instills more responsibility in the student.

According to Dr. Hines, a commitment by faculty has to be present in order to faciltate success in any recruitment program. Hines believes the key to finding the right underepresented student is to seek out solid, not brilliant students. The purpose of this philosophy is to discover new students that traditionally would not be sought out.

Because of this omission, Abthecker stated, racism has been portrayed over the years as being uncontested.

WJUL holds first meeting

Waltner, Tim General Manager, introduced interested new students to the current staff and the philosophy of UML's radio station, occupying 91.5 on FM dial. Some of that phiincludes playing unknown music, wild and entertaining DJs, and a slight twist for the unusual.

The history of this radio station dates back to 1953, when the radio club started as WLTI. In 1976 this station was renamed WJUL.

WJUL is a working radio station representing UML to Lowell and the surrounding community. With 1700 watts of power, this is an extensive area.

Operated by students and alumni, the station resides in the basement of Lydon Library, transmitter and all. Programming explores the commercially unattractive but nevertheless appealing "college" music. Essentially, the station is a local source of alternative rock.

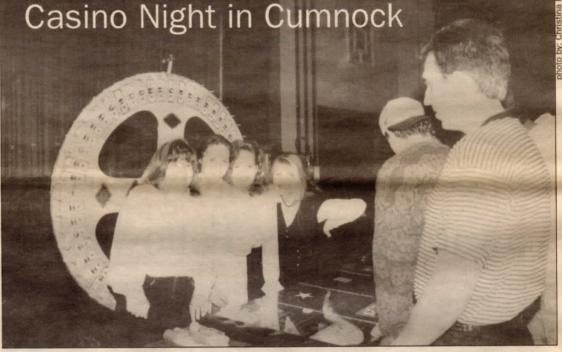

In addition, JUL has expanded itself to include multi-cultural and educational programs. These include eastern music, foreign language shows, talk shows, and classical music. WJUL is supposed to be the voice of UML sports. When asked if they would be continuing the tradition, I was told that a schedule had not been set up yet.

Some of the programs on JUL include "Live from the Fallout Shelter," Mondays at 10 pm, during which local bands perform live at the station. Salsa '91, Doublespeak, Pizza by the Slice, Rave Ryot, Big Bob's Bonanza O' Stuff, Live Sex, and others now permeate the JUL airwaves.

There exists a camraderie and sometimes rivalry between shows. The current rivalry is between Big Bob's Bonanza O' Stuff and Pizza by the Slice. The challenge is a Bowl-a-rama. Matt Ferrara, the local, excitable, and controversial host of Doublespeak and classical music (Tues 6-10 pm.) insists that the audience for JUL is growing as the station responds to the students and stays within its niche of college radio.

I was surprised by the content of the shows that I listened to as I tried to get the flavor of this radio station. There is more then alternative rock. WJUL will be printing its programming schedule in future Connectors. Pick a show and listen-you might just be sur-

The UMass Lowell Student Government Elections are upon us once again and it's easier than you ever could have imagined to get involved.

Senate seats are open for every class: 3 senior, 4 junior, 3 sophomore, and 7 freshman seats.

Requirements include filling out nomination papers, which are available at both North and South Campus Student Information Centers and the SGA office in Fox 411, and acquiring 75 student signatures from members of your own class. The deadline for all paperwork is 12:00 PM on October 1, 1993. Elections will be held on October 6th between 9:00 AM and 3:00 PM in the McGauvran S.U.B. on South Campus and in Southwick Commuter Lounge on North. Popular election votes will prevail in the case of any contested seats.

What is Student Government? What do we do? Why do we exist?

These are some of the questions that people ask about Student Government here at the University. We exist for the students, and that is our main purpose. Many things that we do at student government do not get much publicity. The following are some of the things that we provide to the students of UMass Lowell. If you ever have any questions, talk with one of our representatives or visit our offices in Fox 411 &412 (ext. 5004).

Some Services Provided by Student Government

The Student Information Centers (including pool tables). Cable television in Southwick Lounge and McGauvren Student Union.

Movie Reviews

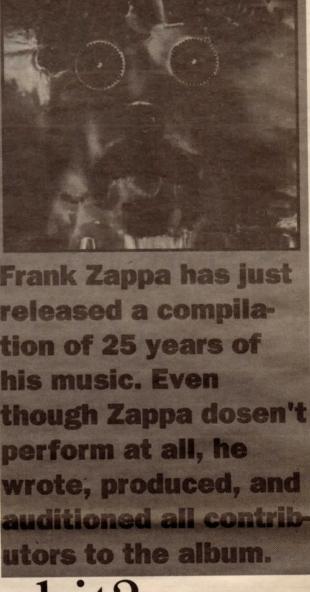

Michael Douglas stars as D-FENS in Falling Down playing at Cumnock hall at 8 pm this Tuesday and Wednesday.

Ken Provencher Arts & Entertainment

Falling Down (1992). If they ever make a movie out of Catcher in the Rye, Joel Schumacher's Falling Down could serve as a retroactive sequel. Michael Douglas is a demented, laid-off defense contractor who declares war on Los Angeles phonies, wielding everything from baseball bats to rocket powered grenades. His victims are as innocuous as Holden

Caulfield's: construction workers, gang members, fast food joints, Korean grocery stores, and a neo-Nazi thrown in for ideological balance. (Douglas is a fascist, but he's a good fascist.) This psychotic material is shaped by Schumacher and screenwriter Ebbe Roe Smith into a freaked-out urban comedy. Douglas' explosions are his way of defending American business standards; we're supposed to laugh at his (right wing) tunnel vision and the (right wing) economy that spawned him. But the buildups to violence are so excruciatingly drawn-out that we'd rather side with Douglas and cheer on the beatings. This repellant movie was a huge success; film professors could use it as a primer on how to shoot a lucrative snuff scene without the aid of suspense, humor, good acting, and psychological realism. With Robert Duvall, Barbara Hershey, Rachel Ticotin, an enormous Tuesday Weld, and Frederic Forrest as the Nazi.

The Program....pass or hit?

Phil Kelnhofer Arts & Entertainment

While it will probably not win any awards or get much critical acclaim The Program is an exciting and entertaining movie worth seeing.

It is the story of a college football program focusing mainly on a few players and their head coach. The players and coach are cliches with the vices and attributes we hear about so often in college football today.

Craig Sheffer most recently seen as Norman MacLean in A River Runs Through It stars as the teams troubled quarterback and Heisman hopeful, Joe Kane, who leads the team by always pushing himself to the edge. The son of an alcoholic Kane is forced unwillingly to confront his own drinking problem while he falls for Camille a fellow jock who is on a full scholarship for tennis. Camille, played Kristy Swanson who is known best as Buffy in Buffy the Vampire Slayer is how we get to see what is going on inside
Joe Kane's character.

Highly touted freshman tailback,
Darnell Jefferson, is played by Omar Epps fresh from his appearance as Q in Juice.
Jefferson is surprised by the fact that he is not actually expected to do school work and the money he gets from boosters. He falls in love with his tutor played by Halle Berry of Boomerang and the Queen miniseries.

Duane Davis portrays senior Alvin Mack the defensive leader and sure first round draft pick. Mack comes from a poor family and plans to support with his NFL contract.

James Caan is great as Head Coach realistic. It is obvious the director/screenwriter David S. Ward (best remember for screenwriter The Sting starring Paul Newman went out of his way to find peoserious problems in college football such as steroids, boosters, and lack of academic standards. However, it never preaches and never tries to make college football seem Winters who must be both a friend to his players and a ruthless dictator on the field while never losing sight of what is best for the program. Caan must deal with his players problems trying to protect the team from investigation and always wanting to win.

The football scenes are exciting and ple who knew how to play. Duke University produces a great authentic collegiate backdrop while the football game action scenes were actually filmed during a 14-minute halftime at a University of Tennesee-South Carolina football game last year.

The Program manages to address overly corrupt.

If you want to see a film with great acting, a wonderful script, and a deep involved plot look elsewhere. But, if you like football and you want a film that will have you leaving the theater thinking that you got your money worth The Program is for you.

The Day The Bridge Collapsed'

by Kevin Winters

Days in San Francisco always seem to be beautiful and balmy. Today was no exception. It was the first Saturday in October 1998 and the city was alive with people. Michael Stewart, the chauffeur for mayor John O'Hara, was pulling his car into a gas station. He had to pick up the Mayor in another twenty minutes along with Governor Ryan Turrow. "Fill it up!

About the author:

Kevin Winters 21, is a junior majoring in psychology at UMass-Lowell and is upon the completion of his first full-length novel. Kevin graduated from Central Catholic high school in 1990 and went on to collect an Associates degree in Liberal Arts at Northern Essex Community College.

He told the attendant. Idle chatter passed between the two of them. Teasingly, Michael told the attendant, "Take special care of this car. It belongs to the mayor!" Michael was an easy going man with a pleasant personality. When the tank was filled he pulled the car around the building. After locking up he went inside the station and asked for the key to the restroom. Michael was cautious. He never left the mayor's car unlocked. With the restroom key in his hand, he headed towards the men's room. At the very moment he unlocked the door, a stranger from behind pushed him in and closed the door. He turned around and the stranger was facing him. Michael was stunned! "What __What's going on here?" Suddenly the stranger pulled out a semi automatic with a silencer and put five bullets into him. He fell hard against the wall and slid down to the floor. The stranger then opened the briefcase he was carrying. He removed a chauffeur's uniform exactly like Michael's. He quickly changed. He found Michael's car keys and went to the car. He drove slowly onto the street heading to city hall. The station's attendant noticed that the friendly driver did not return the restroom's key. He walked from behind the counter and asked one of the employees to keep an eye on the register while he went to check. He did not see the car nor did he see its driver. He took out his spare key and went to the restroom. He gasped Expect tough competition all through the weekend. when he opened the door. He saw Michael on the floor covered with blood. "Oh my God," he whispered as he walked over to check his pulse. He was sure he was dead. Blood was everywhere. He was sick to his stomach. He stood up and ran out of the restroom. He ran back inside the gas station and quickly made an effort to call the police. His trembling fingers made it difficult to dial.

"What's the matter?" the employee asked as he was cleaning the counter.

"I think there's been a murder!" He whispered.

"My God." The employee went white. "And __." He put up his hand and said. "Wait a minute." "Yes, this is the San Francisco Police Department, you are being recorded."

"I think there's been a murder in my gas station-inside the restroom." His speech was rapid and shaky.

"I think you better get over here real fast. I am at Henry's Gas Station on route 5. It think it's the mayor's driver who was shot. Someone stole his car. He could be on his way to City Hall!" Thanks!" He slammed the phone down and said to the employee. "I hope to God they can figure this out before it's to late.

To be continued in Part II next week. Will they save the mayor or will it be to late.

College Astrology

By Linda C. Black

On Monday, the moon is in Taurus, a very practical sign. Pay fees and apply for part-time work then. The sun is in Libra all week; a sign that loves reading. Tuesday and Wednesday, when the moon is in Gemini, will also be excellent for writing papers. On Thursday and Friday, watch out for hidden agendas. A professor may not ask for something that's expected. This weekend is prime for sports events and group activities. Get your studying

A r i e s (March 21-April 19). If you sell something you're not using, you may be able to buy something else you want. Monday would be a good time to place the ad. Concentrate on your studies Tuesday and Wednesday, because you may not feel like doing them Thursday and Friday. If you're working, that plus domestic responsibilities may take up most of your time then. If you need a job, apply for one that's fun. Sports, romance and partnerships are favored this weekend.

Taurus (April 20-May 20). You should be feeling pretty good on Monday, but you may be swamped with tons of paperwork. Do your shopping then, too. Tuesday and Wednesday, books and supplies will cost too much. Thursday and Friday are best for studying, especially regarding finances. Friday afternoon is excellent for a trip that combines business with pleasure. You may have to spend most of the weekend at home, entertaining. Stock up on popcorn, just in case. Sporting events should be excellent, too!

Gemini (May 21-June 21). Monday is pay-back time. Do something you promised. Tuesday and Wednesday are much better. Give speeches and write papers on those days, if possible. Thursday and Friday could be expensive. On the other hand, if you shop for food in huge quantities, you could save money in the long run. Discuss that with roommates and friends. Studies will be easy this weekend, but there'll be tons of social activities too. Luckily, you're good at juggling.

Cancer (June 22-July 22). Get friends to help you with a domestic project on Monday, and it'll sure go faster and be more fun. Tuesday and Wednesday, you may be stuck doing a project for which you have no interest. Maybe you can get a roommate to help. Thursday and Friday should be more fun, when the moon is in your sign. Finish a reading assignment before you go out, though. You may be tempted to throw your money around this weekend, to impress somebody cute. Don't!

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22). It may be hard getting started Monday. Persevere. You'll probably enjoy your classes, once you get there. Tuesday and Wednesday are excellent for club meetings, social action and speaking before large groups of people. Be careful, you may get elected. A deadline looms Thursday or Friday. Turn down invitations so you can get the work done. This weekend, the ball is in your court. That means you'll be lucky and good-looking, so plan something fun.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). Sign up to travel Monday morning, if you can. Good new friends will be one of the fringe benefits. A professor may really pile on the work Tuesday or Wednesday, but you'll be able to handle it. Make sure you understand what's expected. Thursday and Friday are both good for group projects and Friday night is excellent for romance. They may go together. Responsibilities may get in the way of your playtime this weekend. Finish something you promised.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). Be careful with your credit cards Monday. That's real money you're spending! Tuesday and Wednesday are excellent for travel, reading and writing. You may find a conversation so fascinating that you stay up all night talking, too. Don't forget the homework, because a stern professor will not go for excuses Thurs or Friday. You may have to cancel a date if you're not keeping up. An entertainment event this weekend will be fabulous. Don't miss it!

Scorpio (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). Meet with at partner on Monday, and figure out what you need to accomplish next. Tuesday and Wednesday, you may be too busy with stuff you don't want to do. Also take careful notes on those days, and you may find the answer to a question that's been giving you fits. Thursday and Friday are for travel, business and food. Friday night is especially good for learning from an expert. Apprentice yourself to one.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). Work hard Monday, so you'll have time Tuesday and Wednesday to play with friends. If you're having trouble in class, it should be easy to find a tutor those days. You may also want to offer your services regarding a class that's easy. If you're in a social group with financial difficulties Thursday or Friday, suggest a fund-raiser involving food. The big game this weekend would be a great place to sell; the place will be packed!

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). Monday morning is good for romance. Schedule a breakfast date. Tuesday and Wednesday, you may not have much time for fun. A complicated writing project could be hard work. Thursday and Friday are good for making friends, but don't get caught talking in class. A professor won't be amused if your social life gets in the way of the lesson. You may be considering a major purchase this weekend. If so, get it checked out by an expert first.

A quarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). Take care of the house Monday. You'll have more time for romance Tuesday and Wednesday. Play with your friend or interview prospects then. Also do homework; it will be a snap. Thursday and Friday are more like work. A difficult project may take all day and most of the night. Somebody may also ask you about your goals, so think up a few before then. Work with a partner this weekend, and you may build something that's never been seen before!

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20). Monday is a good study day, so do that. Your home or room may be the site of a fascinating conversation Tuesday or Wednesday. If you need to do research, you may have to go to the library. Thursday and Friday are good for making friends, and your work should be done by then. Invite a few people over for a home-cooked dinner, and you'll have a marvelous time. If you're worried about finances, you may be able to land a job over the weekend.

IF YOU'RE HAVING A BIRTHDAY THIS WEEK: If it's Oct. 4, money is your focus this year. Learn to manage it wisely! Oct. 5 or Oct. 6, you're sharp as a tack. Put your talent to work on a huge research project or writing assignment. Oct. 7 or Oct. 8, you're at a crossroads. Choose what you want to be when you grow up, and other decisions will be much easier. And, if it's Oct. 9 or Oct. 10, your leadership may be required. Get involved, and you may also learn how to get whatever you want.

Who Watches The Watchmen

Jason Butze Arts & Entertainment

The Watchmen, a gritty present-day comic book, was written by Alan Moore in 1986, and it contains both a college level vocabulary and a high degree of sophistication. The characters are all well developed and three dimensional; the book has nearly none of the characteristic that most who scorn comics attribute to them. It has no punch-em-up and save-the-world theme running through it. It does deal with issues that are very real and very adult: love, sex, war, death and the meaning of life.

The book opens with an entry from Rorschach's journal; this masked vigilante is a reacimpose his black and white order nearly omnipotent government of the universe on the world. He troubleshooter. is by far the most interesting character in this book. The first lines of the book are, "Dog carcass in alley this morning, tire tread on burst stomach." By using such short, incomplete sentences Rorschach says what he has to as quickly as he can. This curt type of language fits his sickly efficient character perfectly. His brevity in language is a tool he uses to intimidate both criminals and his masked associates.

In the world of the Watchmen, costumed vigilantes have been outlawed, and only a few currently operate. There's the Comedian who's a government sanctioned counter-terrorist.

And there's

Rorschach. The rest of the heroes have retired and are living normal tionary madman attempting to There's Doctor Manhattan - the lives with only memories of their crime-fighting past. All these characters have real motivations and real lives. I'm not saying that this comic is perfectly true to life. I don't know the last time I met a man who could rearrange matter by glancing at it. What I am saying is that the Watchmen comes very close.

It is indeed not a comic for those who read them in a few minutes. There really are a lot of details in this comic - I'm still finding new ones after reading it more than ten times. If you think Bat-Mite is the best comic book character around - don't bother picking this one up. For those of you who love those hippy-dippy comics of the 70's, I believe Archie is still cranking out 'new'

The Watchmen is also a very good mystery; I didn't know whodunnit until the very end. And when I reread it there were several clues that I picked up on. These clues were hard to pick up on the first reading, but they are there.

This is a great comic for the first-time (or one-time) comic reader. No prior knowledge is necessary and there are no plans for a Watchmen II. The Watchmen was a 12 issue limited series and is now available in a bound edition. This includes all issue and an introduction by Frank Miller - a peer of Alan Moore; it costs around sixteen bucks. Trust me it's a bargain. How much did you pay for that useless Intro to Sociology book?

Fashion Statements at UMass Lowell

Art Corvelet Arts & Entertainment

periodically on the Arts & Entertainment pages of the Connector. Its subject is my opinion of the various current trends and fashions that we see on campus. The views expressed here do not necessarily reflect the views of the Connector Staff.

I'm going to start with the various styles of dress that are currently popular with students here. For your convenience, I am going to classify these styles as follows: 1. Grunge, 2. Businessman, 3. Heavy Metal, 4. Rap, 5. Sixties Grunge People" are easy to pick

Hipsters and 6. Average Joe. 1. GRUNGE

This is by far the silliest look This column will appear on campus. The basic idea is to wake up, shower, brush your teeth, and get dressed in the most slovenly way possible. Torn jeans, faded flannel shirts, Chuckies canvas shoes or workboots, an assortment of dirty bandannas and hats (always worn backwards) are the staples of this fashion diet.

On rare occasions when no apparel is worn on the head, hair in combed and carefully styled so been combed nor styled. "The out; they are the ones you mistake for homeless and feel offended when you try and offer alms.

2. BUSINESSMAN

This style of dress is mostly limited to business majors. These are the ones who dress in expensive suits for job interviews and co-op work. Then they make their way to class without stopping to change. This species can be very intimidating to the average student because it forces him/her to face the fact that college is not the real world and people can't dress in as to appear that it has neither sweatpants and T-shirts for their 3. HEAVY METAL

This fashion varies only slightly from the grunge look. It can be defined as grunge...and black. This style of dress doesn't bother me if you belong to "Metallica", "Anthrax" or "Guns and Roses". It bothers me if you listen to the music and somehow feel compelled to emulate their choice of clothing.

4. RAP

This fashion does to rappers what "Heavy Metal" does to heavy metalists (excuse the slang). Black T-shirts, black blue jeans (oxymoron), black hats turned backwards and gold chains worn outside the clothing are big parts of these outfits. Offensive slogans on those black t-shirts is a big

5. AVERAGE JOE

I'll describe the entire wardrobe for you. Sweatshirts (preferably Champion brand), blue jeans (Lee for men, Guess / Jordache for women), sneakers or broken-in loafers (Nike or Reebok only on those sneakers), and an optional hat from your favorite national college or professional sports team.

That's all for now...

Hater

(A&M Records)

"A straight forward collection. Don't let the band's name fool you, this isn't some average thrash metal operation. It's rock sound is simple, and very well done and worth checking out."

John Hiatt

(A&M Records)

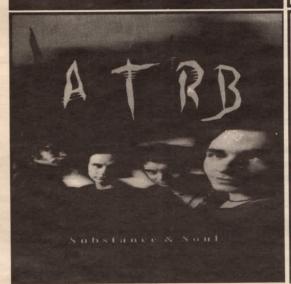

"Usually known more for his songwriting John Hiatt's perfectly good guitar rings true to its name. The album has a very clean cut sound w/its roots perhaps found in country and blues, nevertheless a definite winner."

House of Love

(Mercury/Polygram)

"An excellent album. The The meets the other songs. This self produced is worth its cost."

Last Tribe

(Energy Records)

"Substance & Soul starts out somewhat rough and unpolished, but turns quite pleasant by track #3, It Will Find You. Lead vocalist John Smith's voice is at times reminiscent of Morrisey in his days w/the Smiths. Perhaps, one of the best songs on the albums is 'Til The Break of Day, track #14."

Souls at Zero

(Energy Records)

"Without being too harsh, makinga metal album that's original and worth listening to. Souls at Zero strike out with me, but might have an audience with those still tuned to Megadeath and some of the more extremely hard-core acts of the late 80's."

Around Town

Brother Cane plays this Wednesday at Axis in Boston.

"Got No Shame," the debut track from BROTHER CANE, has proved to be a strong introduction to the group's hard-driving southern rock sound. Featuring a gritty video by director Carlos Grasso, "Got No Shame" captured the #1 and #2 positions on Radio & Records' and Billboard's AOR Tracks charts, respectively, even as the BROTHER CANE album vaulted to #2 on R&R's AOR Albums chart.

The group's stage presence is as powerful as its studio skills; the band has earned a coveted spot on the northeast leg of Robert Plant's upcoming U.S. tour this fall, following their Special Guest slot with Lynyrd Skynyrd and Bad Company. Their next single, "That Don't Satisfy Me," is slated for an October 4 release and will be accompanied by another video by Carlos Grasso.

2nd Annual Coors Chilifest!

There'll be a hot time in the old town on Sunday, October 17, when Horizons For Youth presents the second annual Coors Chilifest - a food and music festival featuring the best chili recipes from several Greater Boston restaurants.

It takes place from noon to 6 P.M. at the Charlestown Navy Yard, where chili aficionados will have the opportunity to sample all the different varities of "steamin' red" and then vote for their favorite. The restaurant with the most votes will win the 1993 "Chili Champ" title, along with a cash of one thousand dollars. There'll also be awards for second place ($500), third place ($250) and the decorated booth ($100).

In addition to unlimited chili, there'll be continuous live musical entertainment as well as several children activities. Also, a number of tall ships have been invited to attend for open house tours and harbor soils.

Admission to the Chilifest, which is sponsored by Coors in cooperation with Mix 98.5 FM and WHDH-AM 850, is $6.00($3.00 for children under 12 and senior citizens). Proceeds benefit nonprofit Horizons For Youth's outdoor programs for needy youngsters. The event is fully tented and will be held rain or shine. For more information, call 617-828-7550.

Student Apathy: Take 67

"Student Apathy"...the words seem to have become the catch phrase for the nineties in the pages of the Connector. Although it's been overused to the point of becoming a cliche, I've decided to write this week's editorial on that very topic- but with a different spin. I won't follow suit with other columnists who condemn apathetic students. To do so would be hypocritical because I consider myself to be an apathetic student.

I do not attend parking rallies. I do not sign petitions to keep the bookstore on campus. I do not sign petitions to move the bookstore downtown. I don't know the names of the S.G.A. senators who have sworn to represent me. I have not attended a UMass Lowell football game. I do not know the names or faces of most of the Deans and administrators whose salaries I pay through my Make no qualms about it; I am an apathetic student. I go to classes, fulfill my obligations as EIC of the Connector, and I go home. My apathy makes S.G.A. members cringe, and Administrators smile. I'm not proud of my apathy, and I don't encourage other students to follow my example. Sadly, though, I am not alone; I wallow in my apathy with thousands of other stu-

I do want to explain something to everyone who shares my belief in the "Doctrine of Apathy". In our choice to be apathetic, we must make certain concessions and forfeit several privileges:

•When we choose not to attend parking rallies, we forfeit our right to legitimately complain about having to park four miles off campus.

•When we choose not to sign petitions to keep the bookstore on campus, we forfeit our right to legitimately complain about having to step between prostitutes and drug dealers in order to purchase textbooks at the new downtown location.

•When we choose not to sign petitions to move the bookstore downtown, we forfeit our right to legitimately complain about the cramped on campus locations and their accompanying long

·When we choose not to inform the S.G.A members, deans and administrators of our views on important issues, we forfeit our right to legitimately complain about the impact that their decisions have on our daily lives.

But, hey, what do I care? I'm apathetic, remember?

Note That Quote:

Never look down to test the ground before taking your next step; only he who keeps his eye fixed on the far horizon will find his right road.

Aid to Flood Victims

Last summer's floods were devastating for many, many residents of the Midwest. Some places are still experiencadditional flooding. Although we may not see as much about the flooded area on TV these days, the clean-up operations continue. Several basic items are urgently required by flood survivors in their efforts to reclaim their homes and to rebuild their lives.

Church World Service, its member denominations, and local interfaith groups are cooperating to respond to the immediate and long-term recovery needs of people and communities hardest hit by the floods. "Gifts of the Heart" recovery kits may be prepared and sent. The Food Staples Kit includes:

Iodized salt-1 lb. box

Cooking oil-32 oz. plastic bottle Canned beef or corned beef-12 oz. can Canned tuna/chicken-12 oz. can Powdered milk-4 lb. box Tea bags-box of 25 Pepper-8 oz. can Dry beans-4 lb. bag White rice-5 lb. bag Granulated sugar-1 lb. box Instant coffee-8 oz.

If you are interested in contributing any of the above items toward a Food Staples Kit, please contact Pastor Imogene Stulken, Protestant Campus Minister, at 454-0683, or x5014. You may also bring 608B. to Fox (Information is available as well if your club or organization would like to prepare a Health, Clean-Up, Kitchen Utensil, or Bedding Recovery Kit.)

Matt Donahue: Students' Choice for City Council?

Two weeks ago at the Student Government Senate meeting, city council candidate Matt Donahue of Lowell spoke to the Senate and Executive Board about his vision for the City of Lowell and one of its largest economic factors, the

After years of grid lock and failed attempts of communication between the City Council and the UMass Lowell Government Association (SGA) and administration, over such things as the bookstore, parking on south, Spring Carnival, and all the parties, no one from City Hall has made an attempt to work for common ground solutions to these problems. All we've heard of is how the University students are doing this and that and that they must be reprimanded. Don't forget the absurd idea by the council to cancel Spring Carnival. As students we deserve better than this. We deserve to be heard! We have a right to work for what will make this university and the city it lies in better! However, how can we work for a better tomorrow if no one from City Hall will cooperate? Fellow students, the answer is clear. Matt Donahue is our solution!

Matt Donahue has pledged to effectively and seriously work, if elected, with the University to sold its problems with the city and foster its role with community as a whole. Donahue sees the good in UMass Lowell students and wants them to actively participate in the city, through its schools, social programs, and cultural events, to demonstrate how good and intelligent we, as students, really are. Matt even mentioned he would initiate a PAID INTERNSHIP for a UMass Lowell student working in his office. Does this prove the commitment of this candidate? I think so!

Serving in many capacities as a community leader, attorney, conservationist, teacher, and coach, Matt Donahue has the experience and will to serve us, the students of UMass Lowell and the city. He's young, vibrant, and energetic and promises to be a valuable asset

How much longer can we let the City Council threaten or intimidate us? How much longer will we brushed aside? When will they listen to us? As a life long resident of Lowell and as a member of the student leadership team, the SGA, it has come to my conclusion, that Matt Donahue is our answer to these questions and is thus the choice for City Council. Why? I think I've pointed that out in this editorial. He's pledged to work with us and sees the good in us. How many times do you see the City Council speaking highly of the University. Not very often or not even at all.

As students, if we want change, we must work for it. If you can vote in Lowell, do it! Exercise the right that people have fought and died for! It doesn't have to be a presidential election for you to vote. What matters is right here at home. That is why I strongly urge you to vote Matt Donahue for the Lowell City Council, the man to unite the University and the city. The preliminary election is tomorrow, October 5. make the choice that will empower VOTE MATT DON-AHUE!

Myths About Food And Weight

Myth #1: Dieting is the best way lose weight - In fact, diets are the least effective way to lose weight long term. 95% of people who go on diets will regain the weight they lose within 1 to 3 years. Diets also lower the body's metabolism and cause the body to store fat more efficiently therefore resulting in weight gain.

Myth #2: A person's weight is determined by their eating habits and lifestyle not heredity - Your weight is determined by a number of different variables including genetic predisposition for a certain weight, metabolism, activity level, food choices, calorie intake, body composition, (amount of muscle versus fat) and emotional/physical stress.

Myth #3: Thin people are more fit than overweight people - Body weight does not determine a person's general health. A thin person's percent of body fat can be significantly higher than someone heavier. Thinness does not equate to physical strength and endurance.

Myth #4: Being overweight shortens one's life expectancy - Statistics suggest that general being underweight shortens life expectancy more than being overweight.

Myth #5: People only eat when they're hungry - People eat for a variety of reasons. For example, physical hunger, boredom, anxiety, loneliness, socializing, or celebrating.

Mistaken beliefs about food and weight can pave the way to problematic eating patterns. If you would like to explore your relationship with food and your body further, there will be a Four Session Workshop sponsored by the Counseling Center 3rd floor, McGauvran Student Center 934-4331. For more information or to register call or stop by. If you have any concerns about your eating or that of someone you care about contact Student Health Services (934-4991), Counseling Center (934-4331) or Anorexia Bulimia Care Anonymous (617)259-9767.

Possible Signs of Eating Disorders: Relentless pursuit of thinness, Hiding or sneaking food, Binge eating or fasting, Feeling powerless over food, Excessive exercising

Rugby Pummels Hartford 1993 Field Hockey Outlook

by James McSweeney Connector Staff

Lowell Rugby physically pummels Hartford and wins 32-0

After a long and depressing 2-8 last season for Lowell Rugby the team decided it was time for a change. Discipline was the key factor that the teams in the past were lacking and that the teams of the future had to have. The first indication that things were going to be different from last year was the fact that people not only worked out in the off season but worked out with intensity and with rugby in mind. Some were taking the route of mountain biking and weightlifting while others chose to play rugby in places as far away as Colorado and as close to home as Dracut.

Upon game day a look of intensity and hunger could be seen on all the ruggers faces which was something that was lacking in the past. In the past the only thing that could be seen on the pre-game face of the Lowell Rugby players was the impact that the 12 pack and the bottle of Mad Dog was having on them from the night previous.

When Lowell took the field it was not long till they scored their first tri (a tri is similar to a football touchdown but is only worth five points). The first tri was soon followed by three others scored by Dean Pawlowski, who scored twice, Brian Daily, and John Porazinski (A.K.A. The Polish Missile).

After the first half of mostly the backs doing the scoring the forwards decided it was time to get their names in the lights. The first was had by Jim McSweeney when he picked up a loose ball at Hartford's 10 meter line and started to make his way towards their tri zone. When it was all said and done McSweeney stood tall in the tri zone with four semi-conscience Hartford bodies draped on him. A spectator on the sidelines was quoted as saying, "That was the single greatest run I had ever seen!" After the forth tri, soon came another by newcomer Brett Sherman, a recent transfer from U. Mass Amherst where he played for three years, which closed the door on Hartford and sealed a 32-0 win.

After the A team played, came a less experienced but just as determined B team who was all fired up to play Hartford. The B team was lead to victory by tries scored by Rob Miller and Mike Carbono midway through the first half. With hard hitting and scrappy play they defeated Hartford's A side who was forced to play again due to a lack of players, by a 12-0 margin.

Many people are to thank for Lowell's performance on Saturday especially Lowell's two new coaches Terry Frechette and Armand Cassetta. Lowell Rugby also want to thank the many fans who supported both A and B side games. We would also like to thank Jeff De Leuw (Barney) for using his head during the game and for receiving the award for the hardest hit of the day. And last but not least to the Lowell serve the shutout.

The rugby team sends out it's condolences to John Porazinski's family who made the trip up from Salem only to see their son cap off a great run by fumbling the ball while in the tri zone...all alone.

Sports Information Office Press Release

The University of Massachusetts Lowell field hockey team is taking on a new look to their opponents this season following their 4-14-1 campaign last year. Houk, who has worked with top Division One and Two teams, brings a new level of intensity and experience to UML.

The 1993 team is small in numbers, however, they are proving in preseason camp to be physically and mentally strong.

According to Houk, the Chiefs are eager to begin the season. The only concern that Houk has about the Chief's 15-member team is making sure everyone remains healthy. The positive aspect of the low number is that it guarantees playing time for all of the players.

The Chiefs have lost some key players from last year's squad. Leading scorer Melanie Bearce (six goals for 12 points), forward Miki Bryan (four goals, two assists), defender Sharon Emmett (4-0-8), midfielder Stacey Hopkins (3-1-7), and second team All-American goalie Ruth Benoit (2.10 goals against average) have all departed.

Houk has inherited an experienced roster that includes ten returning letter winners. Leading the team on the field will be senior captain Courtney Foley (Reading, MA). Foley had one assist at a forward position last season to raise her career scoring total to seven goals and three assists for 17 points.

Junior captains
Jennifer Brown (Walpole, MA) and Jennifer Carter
(Hamilton, MA) will also bring their leadership qualities to the backfield and midfield, respectively. Brown chalked up five assists last fall as a defensive player (0-8-8 career totals). Carter returns this year after missing the 1992 season and should be a big influence in the midfield.

The Chief's top returning scorer from last season is junior forward Kelly Welch (Salisbury, MA) who scored three goals and four assists

Once the Chiefs got things rolling, there was no looking back. A 21-point second quarter gave the chiefs a 28-7 halftime lead on the way.

The chiefs got off on the wrong foot when junior Dana Maxwell's (Rockland, MA) 88-yard kickoff return for a touchdown was called back because of a penalty. Four plays and two penalties later the Chiefs punted from their own seven yard line and Pace took full advantage of the resulting great field position.

Starting at the UML 43, the Setters mixed some effective running plays into their runand-shoot offense to move the ball. On second and goal from the UML 13, Marc Klausner threw a scoring strike to Frand Bucci, and Pete Mallias' successful PAT made it for a total of 10 points (6-5-17 career points). Sophomores Angela Marino (Lexington, MA) and Tara Thomas (Dracut, MA) will add to the offense at the forward positions. According to Houk, Angela Marino (2-0-4 last season) has strong goal scoring abilities, and Thomas (1-2-4 last season) has good speed and passes well. Houk also expects freshman Nancy Pailes (Byfield, MA), who participated in the Future's Elite program, to bring some speed and passing sense to the offense as well.

7-0 for the home team.

The Chiefs came right back on their next possession. Starting at the UML 35-yard line UML marched 65 yards in 11 plays to tie the game. Sophomore QB Dana Boudreau (Tewksbury, MA) plunged in from one yard out for his second touchdown of the season. Sophomore Keith Osborne (Burlington, MA) kicked the first of his five PAT's.

Joining Carter in the midfield will be sophomores Concetta Marino (Lexington, MA) and Julie Ward (Haverhill, MA)> Concetta Marino, who was a defender last fall, and Ward may also see playing time in the backfield.

Those expected to join Brown in the backfield include junior Toby Edwards (Hanover, MA), sophomores Tamara Griffin (Worcester, MA) and Jessica Vreeland (Scituate, MA), Umass Lowell and freshman Opponents

Carolyn Tellier (Pelham, NH). Junior Joanne Guggan (Clinton, MA) and freshman Kerry Dudley (Haverhill, MA), another Future's Elite player, will be sharing time at the goalkeeper position. Duggan appeared in three games last season behind second team All-American Ruth Benoit (358 saves in 19 games) who graduated.

420 16 2.67 420 11 1.83 UMass Lowell, an NCAA Division Independent team, will see some strong opponents this fall. Houk believes that the team will come out to play their best at every game. Among the top teams on the 1992 schedule is Bloomsburg University, NCAA Division Two champions.

The Chiefs scored on their next three possessions in the second quarter to blow the game open.Sophomore Jason Harris (Chelmsford, MA) capped off a 91 yard drive with a three yard run to make it 14-7. The first of three interceptions by Trent Bartlett (Tyngsborough, MA) gave the ball back to the Chiefs at their own 26. Fifteen plays later, Harris slammed in from the one to make it 21-7.

On the ensuing kickoff defensive super back McDonald (Tyngsborough, MA) recovered a fumble at the Pace 25. It took the chiefs just three plays to score again as maxwell went in from three yards out.

Any thoughts of a Pace comeback were dashed early in the third quarter. Sophomore defensive back Seth Usatitis (Northampton, MA) intercepted a pace pass and returned it 12 yards to the UML 36. Eight plays, all on the ground, was all it took the Chiefs to march 64 yards. Senior fullback Dennis Broulette (Dracut, MA) got the TD and put UML ahead 35-7.

Pace did make things interesting as substitution QB Steve Beals threw two TD passesin the fourth quarter. Lowell easily hung on for the satisfying 35-19 victory.
